

Holidays 1992

Hi, Folks!

Hope your holidays are merry and pace.

bring you a welcome change of

Our big news is the imminent arrival of our first grandchild -- Connie is expecting a baby boy around the middle of Dec. I plan to go to Evanston when he's born and try to make myself useful. Otherwise things are going along as usual. Andy is still living at home, gradually turning the basement and garage into an impressive electronics/machine shop for his expanding free-lance engineering business. One of his major involvements is with his radio club's packet radio computer network. And there's always biking. He & Frank wear out bicycles the way the rest of us wear out socks. Frank's mom, 92, stays remarkably well, still lives with her #2 son, Buzz, in MN, and spends a lot of time writing letters to her many friends all over the country. I keep busy volunteering at the Y and puttering around with computers for Frank. Our cat's favorite spot is on top of the monitor, watching the "After Dark" fish. Summers I still work at the Silver Bay Association YMCA in the Adirondacks. And after 27 years we're finally doing some renovation projects around the house -- new windows for a downstairs bedroom this round.

For a change we voted for a winning presidential candidate. Now we're involved in trying to save our Great Swamp N.W.R. from being inundated by increased sewer flow from Prudential's proposed office park.

But, at this time of year we eat lots of turkey, catch up on TV movies, and wish you happy holidays and a good new year.
