

Dec. 2015

□ Happy holiday hello from 216 Noe Ave. Hard to believe it's December - weather is more like October. Buckley and I take advantage of it to walk in the parks. We call him Mr. Gimpy Hips, but he still gets around very well. So do I although knees sometimes get stiff. □ Frank and Andy stay limber by biking. Traffic is so bad that I worry every time they go out. □ Connie, on the other hand, has off-road trails to bike on around Palo Alto. She likes to camp in the desert while looking for interesting rocks. When she visited me at Silver Bay this summer she explored an old mine. Most of them are now closed to all visitors except bats. □ Andy goes to the ends of the earth to meet old friends - he rejoined many at the South Pole in November. □ Ted recommends the book "The Pleasures of Counting" by T. W. Körner, which he makes use of in some of the classes he teaches at Stanford. □ Frank's book has been published and we plan to eat out at least twice at Burger King on his royalties. The book is on Amazon!

□ Morris is finishing at MIT and Henry is happy in high school acting in plays with his Shakespeare club.

Happy holidays
